Once a violence-ridden hamlet, a team of youngsters here cuts ties of factionalism, emerge as SGTs

ONCE a village where violence and bloodshed dominated for generations, Kappatralla village shot to fame when a team of eight youngsters decided to sever the ties of factionalism and wield a pen instead.

Together, Nallabotula Ramanaidu and his brother Nallabotula Ramanijeyulu, Ediga Uttej Goud, Maryada Ramakrishna, Chintamanu Sriramulu and his sister Rajeswari, Mangal Mallesh and Ayesha aspire to contribute to the development of their village located at Devanakonda mandal of Kurnool district. After clearing the DSC-2025 examinations and getting selected as secondary grade teachers (SGTs), they are waiting eagerly to receive appointment letters in Vijayawada on September 19.

Getting coached, guided and mentored for years by EAGLE (Elite Anti-Narcotics Group for Law Enforcement) head Ake Ravi Krishna, they set an example for the next generation to lead a life of dignity by getting empowered through education.

Having grown up amidst frequent occurrences of violence and bloodshed, the selected team said that they were quite fortunate to be guided by Ravi Krishna sir. "From charting out a 100-day action plan to being accessible to us through online classes and conducting mock tests, our sir trained us in every aspect for the DSC recruitment. It was his effective strategies that infused confidence in us and worked wonders for us," the team told The Hans India.

Back in 2015, when the then Superintendent of Police of Kurnool Ake Ravikrishna adopted Kappatralla, the village was in a bad shape. However, his consistent efforts accompanied by grand plans not just changed the lives of the people there but also resulted in a huge transformation of the hamlet infrastructure-wise.

Encouraging people to bid adieu to family feuds that continued for over five decades was indeed a daunting task. But the then SP and now the EAGLE chief could not settle for anything less. "Even when I was serving as an ASP of Chintapalli, a lot of analysis went behind each crime, the triggering factors, crime prevention mechanisms, etc. When I visited Kappatralla for the first time for a training in 2007, it was so heart-wrenching to see children confined to homes, women becoming widows at a young age. In some houses, children were left alone as parents were attacked due to faction-induced vengeance. They did disturb me to a great extent," Ravi Krishna recalled when he was in Visakhapatnam.

Seven years down the line, when Ravi Krishna took charge as SP of Kurnool, he vowed to do his part for Kappatralla by adopting it. The plan of action was set. Things es and handle their business efficiently as most of them are into tailoring, farming, selling clothes or operating units. At a time when they have grown to make their own decisions, what more could I ask for? It is so satisfying to see their progress," mentioned Parvathi Devi, who continues to guide women in Kappatralla in a virtual mode apart from making frequent visits.

After years of sensitisation and intense advocacy drives carried out by Ravi Krishna, Kappatralla is no longer a faction-ridden village.

The facilities provided here have now become a model for the other hamlets to follow suit, while changed mindsets of the people appear to be contagious. "From violence to peace, people have completely transformed in Kappatralla. Over 95 percent of the village lands are now being used for cultivation purposes. There is a visible improvement in the economic growth of the families," explained Ravi Krishna with a tinge of pride.

Once known for violence and vengeance, Kappatralla has totally been revamped into a model hamlet with amenities and changed mindsets that would be the envy of the rest of the villages.

ANDHRA Pradesh MedTech Zone (AMTZ) created a strong capacity for artificial limbs benefiting thousands of persons with disabilities.

From Jaipur foot to 'Vizag hand', myoelectric and bionic upper limbs, solar powered wheelchairs and low-cost prosthetic joints, they were designed to help individuals with upper limb amputations regain mobility and confidence.

The state-of-the-art bionic hand is a shining example of how Indian technology can transform lives. Recently, a woman in Visakhapatnam, who lost her arm in a road accident was attached with the prosthetic, opening new possibilities for independence. Thousands of people have already re-

The Principal Scientific Advisor to government of India Ajay Kumar Sood, who visited AMTZ, Vizag gave away artificial legs to several beneficiaries, while the myoelectric arm was given by Commander in Chief of Eastern Naval Command during a joint congress on emergency surgery held at Eastern Naval Command.

Speaking on the occasion, MD and founder CEO of AMTZ Jitendra Sharma remarked, "Vizag hand is more than a prosthetic, it is a promise of dignity."

The Assistive Technology Centre, supported by ICMR, New Delhi at AMTZ has been integrating research, prototyping, testing, and manufacturing under one roof, ensuring that customised solutions reach underprivileged communities.

The Divyanjan communities and groups from across the country are now collaborating with Assistive Technology Centre bridging the gap between the needy and Med Tech Zone's Prosthetic Limb Centre. Led by Amit Sharma, Med Tech Zone has created a ray of hope for beneficiaries who need artificial limbs and assistive devices.
