

Huma Qureshi gets emotional as she revisits her Nanihal and celebrates her Kashmir roots

Actress Huma Qureshi recently revisited her roots in Kashmir during the promotions of her film "Baby Do Die Do." Sharing her special connection with the valley, the actress revealed that Kashmir is her nanihal, as her mother belongs to the region. Huma expressed gratitude for the love and warmth she received during her visit, calling it a memorable experience for her and her team.

Taking to Instagram, she shared several videos and photos from her visit and wrote, "What a beautiful return to our nanihal. Bringing #BabyDoDieDo to our nanihal in Srinagar was always going to be special. But the love and warmth we've been met with over the last 24 hours has made it something we'll remember for a very long time."

The video showed Qureshi watching the film with the audience and surprising them with her unexpected appearance. The actress was seen interacting with fans and sharing the excitement of experiencing the film's response alongside viewers. Addressing the media, she said, "First of all, I just want to say Saqib is here, my entire cast is here, and my director is here. We just came to say thank you to Kashmir, because our film is playing over here and we are getting so much love. So, we wanted to come and thank you, and this is our Nanihal. You know, my mother is from here."

"So, whenever we come here, Saqib and I both, we get so much love. Actually, a show is ending up there. They don't know that we have come. We just want to give them a surprise. We will go to the show and meet you. Thank you. If it gets released, they will leave. We have come for their love."

On a related note, "Baby Do Die Do," directed by Nachiket Samant and produced by the Saleem Siblings, stars Huma Qureshi, Sikander Kher, and Chunky Pandey in pivotal roles. The story follows a deaf and mute serial killer in Mumbai who, while carrying out a series of murders for unknown reasons, can only hear the voice of her deceased sister. The crime thriller was released in theaters on July 3.

Raashii Khanna opens up about falling sick during shoot of Akshay Kumar's upcoming comedy

Actress Raashii Khanna has opened up about a challenging experience she faced while shooting for Akshay Kumar's upcoming comedy film.

The actress revealed that she fell sick in the middle of the shoot but continued to be part of the project despite the difficult circumstances. Sharing details about the experience, Raashii revealed that while filming action sequences, she suffered a few bruises during the process. She admitted that it was not the easiest schedule she had worked on.

However, the 'Madras Café' actress said the love and support she received from her co-stars, family, and the film's crew helped her get through those challenging moments. Raashii added that small gestures, like a hug from her nephew, a call from her family, or the team checking on her well-being, made the tough days feel much easier and brighter. Sharing photos on Instagram, the 'Yodha' actress wrote, "I've always believed that every schedule teaches you something, and this one reminded me how much strength comes from the people around you.

Falling sick in the middle of a shoot is never ideal, and there were moments when I genuinely had to push myself physically. But then you'd get a hug from your nephew, a call from family, or everyone from the unit asking if you were okay, and suddenly the day would feel lighter."

"We were shooting action, I picked up a few bruises along the way and it wasn't the easiest schedule I've done but it was one filled with compassion. When I think about wrapping this leg of the film, I don't think about the fatigue but about the gratitude.

Those are the memories that stay with you forever, long after the cameras stop rolling."

Raashii Khanna has wrapped up filming for Anees Bazmee's upcoming comedy, which stars Akshay Kumar and Vidya Balan in lead roles. The untitled comedy marks the reunion of Akshay Kumar and Vidya Balan after 'Bhool Bhulaiyaa' and also brings Bazmee back together with Akshay after several years.

The film also features Sudesh Lehri, Zakir Hussain, and Vijay Raaz in key roles.
