Argument over damaged document turns violent

PUTTUR: An argument over a document that was damaged while being photocopied and laminated escalated into a physical altercation at a digital service centre in Puttur's Darbe area on Friday, prompting police intervention and the registration of complaints from both sides. The incident occurred at the "Dream Destination Digital Seva Kendra", where three residents of Mandekolu in Sullia — Mubashir, Fathima and Mubashir — had gone to have documents photocopied and laminated. One of the documents was damaged due to what police described as a technical fault. The incident led to an argument between the three customers and the centre's owner Anjana Pai and her son Sudarshan Pai. The dispute later turned physical, police said. As word spread, people gathered outside the establishment, following which personnel from the Puttur Town Police Station reached the spot. Police asked members of both sides to come to the station and submit their complaints. Tensions, however, continued after police decided to take Sudarshan Pai to the station for questioning. Some of the people gathered at the spot allegedly prevented the police from taking him away, leading to a separate complaint for obstruction of official duty. Police said complaints and counter-complaints relating to the altercation were being registered and that details would be disclosed after the cases were formally registered. The shop has CCTV cameras, and investigators will examine the recordings to establish what happened and determine further legal action. Police have also cautioned people against circulating unverified information or rumours about the incident, warning that appropriate legal action would be taken against those found deliberately spreading false information.

Python under Vande Bharat Exp triggers panic

However, around noon, staff members spotted about a 10-foot-long python slithering beneath the train and near a coach.

ED can't revive 'dead' PMLA case with old FIR: HC

HANS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court has ruled that the Enforcement Directorate (ED) cannot keep a money-laundering case alive by adding an old FIR to an existing Enforcement Case Information Report (ECIR) after the predicate offence underpinning the proceedings has been closed.

Justice Anish Dayal termed the ED's action "illegal and procedurally ir-

Court says agency cannot 'turn clock backwards' by adding six-year-old case; quashes proceedings regular", observing that the agency could have registered a fresh ECIR based on the separate FIR if statutory requirements were satisfied.

The court said the ED's conduct raised "serious concerns" and appeared to be an attempt to preserve the existing ECIR and retain its coercive powers under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA), including search, seizure, freezing and attachment of properties.

The ECIR was registered in December 2021 on the basis of a February 2021

Economic Offences Wing FIR arising from a dispute between two factions of the family of late former MP Mahendra Prasad. The allegations involved share transfers and bank transactions allegedly carried out using forged signatures of Prasad's wife, Satula Devi.

However, the EOW filed a cancellation report in December 2022 after concluding that no offence was made out. The report was subsequently accepted by the trial court.

The ED later added a separate 2019 FIR to the ECIR through an addendum in August 2025. That FIR related to allegations including wrongful confinement, removal of jewellery and offences under the Passports Act.

The High Court noted that the 2019 FIR existed even before the ECIR was registered and remained outside it for nearly six years.

An ECIR depends on the existence of a predicate or scheduled offence, the court said, adding that once the underlying FIR is closed, PMLA proceedings based on it cannot continue unless the closure is overturned by a superior court.

Complaint of pellet victim

Rahul ends over-6-hour dharna after FIR filed

'This is the first step towards justice and a case has been registered'; there are pellets in his body and he cannot even see as he has suffered injuries in his eye

PURNA SINGH
NEW DELHI

CONGRESS leader Rahul Gandhi ended his over-six-hour dharna at the Parliament Street police station here on Friday, after an FIR was registered on a complaint from a young man who has suffered pellet injuries and said this is the first step towards justice. Gandhi sat on the dharna outside the police station after police refused to lodge an FIR on 19-year-old Sahil Lochab's complaint.

"This is the first step towards justice and a case has been registered," Gandhi said, soon after the Delhi Police registered the FIR. "There are pellets in his body and he cannot even see as he has suffered injuries in his eye. This is injustice with this youngster.

For almost a month, he has been calling for the registration of an FIR and moving from one police station to another. "After hours of protest, an FIR has been registered. One can imagine what the people of the country suffer when they seek justice. There are several rape victims and victims of intimidation and they continue to fight while seeking justice," the leader of opposition in the Lok Sabha said.

Gandhi, who had earlier alleged that police are "under pressure from the top" for not registering a complaint, claimed that the FIR was lodged only after clearance from top authorities in the home ministry.

"The final FIR has been registered after an okay from the home secretary and (Home Minister) Amit Shah, then you can imagine who was stopping the registration of an FIR as these cops wanted to do so but were not allowed to do so," he said. The Delhi Police registered the FIR in connection with the pellet injuries suffered by Lochab during the July 20 students' protest at Jantar Mantar.

"We have registered an FIR under sections 118 (voluntarily causing hurt or grievous hurt by dangerous weapons or means) and 25 (act endangering life or personal safety of others) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita," a police officer said.

RS 9 CRORE CASH SEIZED FROM CAR

BENGALURU: Income Tax officials, acting on specific information, seized unaccounted cash worth around Rs 9 crore from a Kerala-registered car near the Veeransandra signal in Bengaluru's Electronic City on Friday.

According to police, the Income Tax Department alerted the Electronic City police about the illegal transportation of a large amount of cash in the vehicle. Acting on the information, police intercepted and checked the car, following which the cash was found and seized.

Preliminary information suggests that the cash belonged to a gold jeweller, who owned a jewellery shop, and is reportedly a native of Thoothukudi in Tamil Nadu.

The Income Tax Department had also conducted a search at the gold jeweller's residence, where officials allegedly found an additional Rs 1.35 crore in cash.

The gold shop owner has been taken into custody for questioning in connection with the seizure. The Income Tax officials are investigating the source of the money and the purpose for which it was being transported. The seized cash was reportedly being transported in the Kerala-registered car when it was intercepted by the police.

Govt rejects ethanol link to sugar price surge

HANS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI

THE government on Friday rejected claims that diversion of sugar for ethanol production was driving a sharp rise in sugar prices, saying instead that lower domestic output, festive-season demand and hoarding had prompted the government to impose stock limits and allow duty-free imports to contain prices. "It is incorrect to attribute the recent increase in sugar prices to diversion of sugar for ethanol production," the Ministry of Consumer Affairs, Food & Public Distribution said in a statement. The share of sugar diverted for making ethanol for doping in petrol, has, in fact, declined to around 9 per cent in the 2025-26 season from about 12 per cent in 2022-23, while nearly three-fourths of India's ethanol production now comes from grains, particularly maize, it said.

FDA suspends license of McDonald's outlet

MUMBAI: The Maharashtra Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has suspended the food business licences of the Bombay Presidency Radio Club and a McDonald's outlet in south Mumbai along with 11 other food establishments across the state for alleged violations of food safety and hygiene norms, officials said on Friday. The FDA is in news since IAS officer Tukaram Mundhe took charge as its commissioner in May and launched a crackdown on food establishments found violating various laws and rules. In a recent special drive, it inspected 89 hotels, restaurants and dhabas across the state, and issued improvement notices to 71 establishments while suspending the licences of 13 food establishments, an official release said. During an inspection carried out on August 19, Radio Club recorded a non-compliance rate of 47 per cent, and was asked to stop all purchase, sale and distribution of food during the suspension period, it said. Officials allegedly found a large number of live flies and dead cockroaches in the Club's kitchen. They also allegedly found peeling paint and plaster on the ceiling above food preparation areas, washing powder and other chemicals stored close to food items, food kept directly on the floor, and unclean refrigerators used for non-vegetarian food.

NTA clarifies on Rs 200 answer key challenge fee, refund rules

HANS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI

THE National Testing Agency (NTA) has said that its 'answer key challenge' system is designed to be fair to all students, and rejected concerns about it being expensive.

An NTA answer key challenge is an online process where candidates who take an exam (like JEE Main, NEET, or UGC NET) can object to errors in the provisional answer key.

'One challenge, everyone benefits. If even a single candidate challenges a question, and the subject experts accept the challenge, the revised answer key applies to every candidate who wrote the exam'

The NTA has been under fire lately over issues ranging from NEET-UG paper leak to errors in the UGC-NET examinations.

"On the concern being raised that answer key challenges are 'too expensive': a quick clarification for candidates. The answer key challenge system is designed to be fair to every student, not just the one who challenges," NTA said in a post on X on August 20, Thursday.

"One challenge, everyone benefits. If even a single candidate challenges a question, and the subject experts accept the challenge, the revised answer key applies to every candidate who wrote the exam," it said. The NTA said that fee is charged for challenging an answer to discourage frivolous challenges and it is refunded if the challenge turns out to be right. "The Rs 200/question is refunded to the candidate whose challenge is upheld. The fee exists to discourage frivolous challenges, not to profit from genuine ones," the agency said.

"So if you have identified a genuine error and raised it, if found correct will not only be refunded but one accurate challenge from any candidate can correct the record for lakhs of others," it added.

Anant Agni from Goa, winner of the Dr. TMA Pai Outstanding Konkani Book Award and an established columnist, lit the ceremonial lamp to open the event.

He noted that Konkani's inclusion in the Eighth Schedule of the Constitution stems from its status as Goa's official language and its independent character. Elevation of the language,

Champions stronger classroom presence for the language

he observed, can occur only through sustained development of Konkani education and literature in the states of Goa, Karnataka, Maharashtra and Kerala, and cannot be achieved by functions alone.

Members of the Mangalore Konkani Vachana Satra raised the national flag and sang the pride anthem "Godi Godi Hodi Bhas Konkani", after which they staged the short play "Konkani Antardhvani" written by Ashok Nayak. President Nandagopal Shenoy welcomed the gathering.

CM challenges Oppn to seek debate on Nagendra issue

BENGALURU

CHIEF Minister D K Shivakumar on Friday challenged the BJP and JD(S) to formally seek a discussion in the Legislature on the demand for the resignation of Minister B Nagendra, saying there was no justification for disrupting proceedings without giving notice.

BJP has been staging demonstrations inside and outside of both the Houses of Karnataka Legislature demanding removal of Planning and Statistics Minister Nagendra alleging his involvement in the Karnataka State Maharshi Valmiki Scheduled Tribes Development Corporation scam worth Rs 89 crore, which had happened in 2024.

Speaking in the Legislative Council, Shivakumar said the opposition was entitled to protest in a democracy but should follow parliamentary procedures and place its allegations before the House.

He recalled that Nagendra had earlier resigned to facilitate an inquiry and that the government had subsequently conducted an investigation.

Questioning the basis of the renewed demand for resignation, the Chief Minister asked what fresh information the opposition had uncovered and urged it to disclose before the House any findings allegedly obtained from agencies such as the CBI, Enforcement Directorate and SIT.

He said the government was prepared to devote an entire day, or even two days, to a discussion on the issue if the opposition submitted a notice. Shivakumar also said he was ready to explain the reasons behind reinducting Nagendra into the Cabinet and answer all questions raised by the opposition.

The Chief Minister criticised allegations made against Nagendra and the government without a formal debate, saying it was unreasonable to brand the minister or the government as corrupt without first discussing the matter in the Legislature.

In a swipe at BJP members, Shivakumar said opposition leaders might be uncomfortable if he began naming Union and state ministers against whom cases had been registered in the past and explaining how those investigations had proceeded, reiterating his call for a structured debate on the issue.

Haveri farmers protest as 90% of lakes remain dry despite monsoon

HANS NEWS SERVICE
HAVERI

FARMERS in Haveri district have raised serious concerns over the failure to fill local lakes even after nearly two-and-a-half months of the monsoon, alleging that water available through lift irrigation channels is not being released into the water bodies.

Farmers of Keremattihalli village in Haveri taluk staged a protest on the bed of their village lake, demanding immediate release of water. The protesters raised slogans demanding water and accused officials of ignoring their repeated requests. The district has around 2,058 lakes, and farmers claimed that nearly 90% of them have received little or no water so far. The situation has caused concern among the farming community, particularly in areas dependent on lakes for irrigation and groundwater recharge.

The approximately 100-acre lake at Keremattihalli is among the water bodies that remain largely dry. Farmers from the surrounding areas said the lack of water could seriously affect agricultural operations during the ongoing kharif season.

The farmers said the situation was particularly worrying because the district is already experiencing inadequate rainfall. They alleged that while rainfall has been below normal in several parts of the district, the authorities have also failed to utilise available water resources by diverting water through lift irrigation channels into the lakes.

According to the protesters, they have repeatedly approached officials of the Minor Irrigation Department, seeking water for the lake. However, their requests have allegedly failed to result in any concrete action. Farmers also alleged that they were unable to contact the engineers responsible for the irrigation infrastructure. Despite repeated attempts to reach the officials over the phone, there had been no response, they claimed.

The protesters said the authorities should not wait until the situation worsens before taking action. With a significant portion of the monsoon already over, they fear that continued failure to store water could leave farmers dependent on borewells and other uncertain sources during the later stages of the agricultural season.

The farmers pointed out that filling lakes is important not only for irrigation but also for improving groundwater levels. If the water bodies remain dry, borewells in surrounding agricultural areas could also be affected, increasing the burden on farmers. The protestors demanded that the government immediately assess the availability of water in the lift irrigation system and release water to eligible lakes wherever technically feasible.

They also urged the Minor Irrigation Department to inspect the channels and identify whether any technical problems were preventing the flow of water. Any damaged or blocked sections should be repaired without delay, they said.

Farmers warned that continued official inaction could lead to serious consequences for agriculture in the district. They demanded a clear plan for filling the lakes and better coordination between irrigation officials and local farmers. The protesters said the government should treat the issue as an urgent water-management problem rather than waiting for farmers to approach officials repeatedly.

They also urged elected representatives and district authorities to intervene and ensure that water reaches the lakes before the remaining monsoon period ends. For farmers in Keremattihalli and surrounding villages, the issue is not limited to the immediate agricultural season. They said adequate storage in the lake would help maintain groundwater levels and support farming and drinking-water needs in the months ahead.

The farmers have therefore demanded immediate release of water through the lift irrigation canal and a comprehensive assessment of all major lakes in the district to prevent a possible water crisis.

Key witness in ex-MP Prajwal rape case says she got threat calls

BENGALURU

A key prosecution witness in the rape trial against former Hassan MP Prajwal Revanna has expressed apprehension about her safety and that of her son after allegedly receiving threatening phone calls following her deposition before a special court here.

The 43-year-old social worker from Hassan district, who was examined as a prosecution witness on July 6, raised the issue during her cross-examination on Thursday. The court, taking note of her allegation, directed the Additional Director General of Police, Criminal Investigation Department (CID), to inquire into the alleged threats and submit a report at the next hearing. It also directed the authorities to provide protection to the witness as per law.

The witness also told the court that she feared a possible threat from the accused persons and said that if anything happened to her or her son, they should be held responsible. The case is currently at the trial stage and is being conducted through a special public prosecutor. The development comes days after

Central Crime Branch (CCB) personnel recovered a mobile phone, charger, pen drive and scribbling pad from Prajwal's cell in the high-security bar-rack at Parappana Agrahara prison. Prajwal, the grandson of former prime minister H D Deve Gowda and Holenarasipura MLA H D Revanna's son, represented Hassan in the Lok Sabha from 2019 to 2024.

He was arrested in May 2024 in connection with sexual assault cases and was later convicted in a rape case. A special court in Bengaluru sentenced him to life imprisonment in August 2025, following which he was lodged in Parappana Agrahara prison.

Single-roof administration for Mangaluru Railways to begin in October

HANS NEWS SERVICE
MANGALURU/NEW DELHI

THE Ministry of Railways has formalised a long-discussed jurisdictional realignment involving the Mangaluru railway area. A Railway Board communication numbered 2025/E&R/1(3)/1 and dated 21 August 2026 addresses the General Managers of South Western Railway and Southern Railway as well as the Chairman and Managing Director of Konkan Railway Corporation Limited.

The competent authority has decided that the Mangaluru area up to Ullal will be transferred from the Palakkad Division of Southern Railway to the Mysuru Division of South Western Railway. Consequently, the interchange points between South Western Railway and Southern Railway will shift from Padil to Ullal.

Thokur station will remain part of Konkan Railway Corporation Limited in its present capacity and will function as the interchange point between Konkan Railway and South Western Railway. The divisional and zonal boundaries that currently exist between Konkan Railway and Southern Railway will become the boundaries between Konkan Railway and South Western Railway.

Transfer to Mysuru Division of South Western Railway ends years of split jurisdiction

Exact divisional and zonal boundaries between Southern Railway and South Western Railway will be specified in the Gazette Notification that will follow. On the question of manpower, the Board has prescribed clear procedures.

For gazetted staff, necessary transfer orders for the change of zone together with posts will be issued in due course; action in respect of Group-B officers will be taken as per extant rules.

For non-gazetted staff the transfer of posts and personnel will occur on an "as is where is" basis, yet every employee will be offered the choice of remaining with Southern Railway or moving to South Western Railway. Those who opt for South Western Railway will be transferred on administrative grounds, with seniority determined according to length of service in the present grade.

The jurisdictional changes will take effect from October 1 once the Gazette Notification is issued. All preparatory steps, including the transfer of posts, the calling of options from staff, and the relocation of control boards, are required to be completed in a timely manner. Dakshina Kannada parliamentary representative Capt. Brijesh

Chowta has noted that the demand for unified administration had been pressed consistently since mid-2024 through engagement with the Union Minister for Railways and other institutional forums. The realignment is expected to reduce coordination difficulties that arose from the previous dual jurisdiction, facilitate quicker handling of operational and passenger-related matters, and allow more concentrated attention on railway infrastructure and connectivity projects serving coastal Karnataka.

With the formal notification anticipated shortly, the new arrangement places the Mangaluru segment under a single zonal and divisional authority within South Western Railway, thereby simplifying the administrative framework that governs one of the region's important transport corridors.

HDK reiterates NICE toll boycott call

BENGALURU : Union Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy on Friday reiterated his appeal to motorists not to pay toll on the NICE Road, intensifying the ongoing dispute between vehicle users and toll plaza operators.

Speaking to mediapersons in Bengaluru, Kumaraswamy alleged that the NICE organisation was collecting toll illegally and accused the state government of allowing arbitrary increases in toll rates. He urged motorists to continue refusing payment despite the possibility of police cases.

“Do not be afraid even if an FIR is registered. I appeal to the people with folded hands — do not pay the toll under any circumstances,” Kumaraswamy said. His remarks come amid growing confusion at NICE toll plazas following his earlier statement asking motorists to stop making payments. Several motorists have reportedly refused to pay after showing videos of Kumaraswamy’s statement circulating on social media.

The refusal has led to heated exchanges between toll staff and motorists, with employees questioning drivers about any court order or government direction exempting them from payment. Toll operators have maintained that there is no such official order and have reportedly put up notices warning motorists of legal action for refusing to pay.

Kumaraswamy, however, stepped up his criticism of the state government and the NICE organisation. He claimed that the company had collected around Rs 2,000 crore through tolls and questioned the government’s decision to continue allowing collections. He also questioned Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar’s role in the matter and demanded to know why the government had not taken steps to stop toll collection if there were violations.

FAKE CANCER DRUG RACKET

Kingpin Prashanth suspected to be hiding in India, not abroad

The gang is suspected to have sold nearly 40,000 bottles of counterfeit cancer medicines by using the names and packaging of medicines manufactured by US-based pharmaceutical companies

HANS NEWS SERVICE
BENGALURU

THE investigation into the alleged fake medicine racket in Karnataka has revealed that the accused may have been manufacturing and selling counterfeit cancer drugs for nearly 18 months, with investigators now focusing on the alleged kingpin, Prashanth.

According to investigators, Prashanth, along with some of his relatives and associates, allegedly ran the racket and targeted expensive medicines, particularly those used in cancer treatment. The gang is suspected to have sold nearly 40,000 bottles of counterfeit cancer medicines by using the names and packaging of medicines manufactured by US-based pharmaceutical companies. Investigators suspect that bottles and labels resembling those of genuine American medicines were used to make the counterfeit products appear authentic. The medicines were allegedly manufactured at a farmhouse in Dodderi near Ramangara before being supplied through the network.

The alleged racket came to light after officials raided the farmhouse on August 19. A case was subsequently registered at Tavarekere police station, leading to the arrest of four people.

Police are now searching for Prashanth, who is suspected to be the key person behind the operation. His wife and other relatives have been questioned as part of the investigation. His wife reportedly told investigators that Prashanth was abroad. However, police are examining the possibility that he may still be in India.

Investigators are also verifying his travel details with the Foreigners Regional Registration Office. Sources said the information available with the authorities does not establish that Prashanth had travelled abroad. Based on the suspicion that he may be attempting to evade arrest, police have issued a lookout notice against him.

Meanwhile, the state government has ordered a Special Investigation Team (SIT) probe into the racket. Following the government order, the Tavarekere police have handed over the case records to the SIT. The investigation is being led by IPS officer Vamshikrishna. The SIT has formally taken up the case and is expected to question the four accused already arrested by the police.

The investigation will focus on the source of the counterfeit packaging, procurement of pharmaceutical ingredients, manufacturing process, distribution network and financial transactions linked to the alleged racket.

Govt keen to bring foreign university campuses to KWIN City: Patil

HANS NEWS SERVICE
BENGALURU

EIGHT leading companies, including Toyota, and research institutions 14 entities in all have entered into agreements for the KWIN City being developed between Doddaballapura and Dabaspet. Some foreign universities have sought buildings tailored to their specific requirements under a ‘build-to-suit’ model. The Government is considering an appropriate model to meet these requirements, Large and Medium Industries Minister MB Patil said on Friday.

The Minister was responding to a starred question raised by nominated member K Shivakumar in the Legislative Council. KWIN City is being developed across 5,000 acres. Development work on the first phase is currently under way, and the tendering process has been completed.

Toyota is establishing a state-of-the-art innovation centre here, which will be of a standard that the company does not even have in its home country, Japan. Global-standard medical institutions, the Indian Institute of Science and a campus of the National Law School of India University will also come up here, he explained.

Imperial College London, ranked second globally; the University of New South Wales in Australia, ranked 19th; the University of Liverpool, ranked 139th; Lancaster University, ranked 164th; La Trobe University, ranked 241st; and Flinders University, ranked 374th, have already signed agreements with the State Government.

Of these, the University of New South Wales and the University of Liverpool have already established campuses at Manyata Business Park in Bengaluru and the Alembic City complex in Whitefield, respectively. The Government wants these institutions to establish campuses in KWIN City as well. Imperial College London will establish an innovation hub here, he said. Some companies and universities are seeking a ‘build-to-suit’ model. The Government is considering constructing buildings tailored to the specific requirements of such institutions, enabling them to operate from these premises for the next 30–40 years. Only the eligibility and credentials of the institutions will be considered while allotting such facilities. KWIN City will also have residential facilities and common amenities. The process of allotting space to suitable and reputed institutions will be taken up over the next year, he said.

Speaking on the occasion, K Shivakumar appreciated MB Patil’s efforts to promote industrial growth in the State and attract greater investments to Karnataka. “These efforts are creating employment, promoting regional equity, increasing economic activity and boosting exports in the State. This is commendable,” he said.

Guide government on increasing revenue, plugging leaks: CM to CAs

CHIEF Minister DK Shivakumar on Friday urged chartered accountants to advise the state government on increasing revenue, plugging financial leakages and correcting shortcomings in the system.

Addressing a dialogue conference organised by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI) at Palace Grounds in Bengaluru, Shivakumar said the government was open to suggestions and sought the professional community’s guidance on strengthening the state’s finances. “Our government is an open book. We are open to new ideas and solutions. Give us suggestions to correct our mistakes and prevent leakage of resources. You are the custodians of trust, and that trust is in your blood. Protect it,” he said.

The Chief Minister said chartered accountants could play an important role in protecting people’s assets, improving revenue collection and strengthening the economy. He also criticised what he described as harassment of honest taxpayers by officials. “Honest taxpayers are sometimes subjected to mental harassment by officials, while those who actually evade taxes are not questioned. Karnataka is more disciplined compared to several other states, with a large proportion of transactions taking place through formal channels,” he said.

The Chief Minister urged chartered accountants to suggest ways of increasing government revenue without creating difficulties for businesses and industries. Shivakumar also sought the help of chartered accountants in ensuring better utilisation of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) funds.

He said Karnataka should focus CSR resources on strengthening primary education in rural areas and urged ICAI members to guide companies in directing their CSR investments towards such priorities. “Give companies guidance on CSR funds. Our government wants greater focus on primary education in rural areas. We are working on an education policy towards this objective,” he said.

Responding to a request from ICAI representatives regarding land for the organisation, Shivakumar assured them that he would look into the matter. “Come and meet me next week after the Assembly session. Your demand is in the interest of the state and the new generation. You should also advise our government on resource mobilisation,” he said.

The Chief Minister concluded by calling for greater cooperation between the government and the professional community, saying the purpose of his participation was not merely to receive applause but to seek a partnership in strengthening Karnataka’s economy and public finances.

MoU inked to establish Dorabji Tata School of Undergraduate Studies

Record 12,000 applications for inaugural UG programmes; first batch of 80 students to commence on August 31

THE Indian Institute of Management Bangalore (IIMB) and Tata Trusts on Friday signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to establish the IIM Bangalore–Dorabji Tata School of Undergraduate Studies, as the institute’s new undergraduate programmes received 12,000 applications for the inaugural cohort of 80 students.

The first batch, comprising 40 students each in two four-year, full-time residential programmes, will commence on August 31.

The MoU formalises a philanthropic contribution by the Tata Trusts, Sir Dorabji Tata Trust, towards the establishment and initial development of the School of Undergraduate Studies. The support will include the creation of academic infrastructure as well as contributions to the School’s strategic direction, vision-setting, policy formulation and governance oversight.

The MoU was signed by Tata Trusts Chairman Noel Tata and IIMB Board of Governors Chairperson Dr Devi Shetty in the presence of Tata Trusts CEO Siddharth Sharma and IIMB Director-in-Charge Prof U Dinesh Kumar.

“For over a century, the Tata Trusts have seeded some of India’s most defining institutions that have influenced generations and continue to serve public good long after the initial investment,” Noel Tata said.

He said India’s next phase of growth would require institutions that could be ranked among the best in the world.

“Our partnership with IIM Bangalore reflects that approach. Through the IIMB-Dorabji Tata School of Undergraduate Studies, we hope to support an institution that can set new benchmarks for undergraduate education and make a lasting contribution to the country,” he said.

Dr Devi Shetty said the partnership would provide the School with a strong foundation to develop an ambitious model of multidisciplinary education.

“IIM Bangalore is a public institution of eminence with a distinguished history of creating transformative educational opportunities. Our partnership with the Tata Trusts, a name synonymous with integrity, nation-building and innovation for the public good, will provide the IIMB-Dorabji Tata School of Undergraduate Studies with a strong foundation,” he said.

The School is part of IIMB’s broader effort to expand its contribution to undergraduate education while maintaining the academic rigour and global orientation associated with its postgraduate programmes.

Located about 23 km from IIMB’s Bannerghatta Road campus in the Jigani-Anekal area, the School is being developed as a dedicated residential academic environment focused on interdisciplinary learning, research and innovation.

It will initially offer a BSc (Hons) in Data Sciences with a minor in Economics and a BSc (Hons) in Economics with a minor in Data Sciences.

The inaugural cohort of 80 students was selected from among 12,000 applicants, making the programmes highly competitive and bringing together students with strong academic and extracurricular profiles.

Tata Trusts CEO Siddharth Sharma said the rapid advances in technology, data and artificial intelligence had underscored the need for multidisciplinary education.

‘Homemaker’ not limited to women, observes HC in compensation case

The principle, the court noted, applies equally to men

HANS NEWS SERVICE
BENGALURU

THE High Court has observed that the term “homemaker” is not restricted to women and can apply to men, women and even working professionals who contribute to the welfare and well-being of their families.

The observation came while hearing a motor accident compensation case involving a woman who suffered permanent disability in a KSRTC bus accident. The High Court enhanced the compensation awarded to her by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal by an additional Rs 1,96,800.

The appeal was filed by Pampa Pal, a native of West Bengal, seeking enhancement of the Rs 4.55 lakh compensation awarded by the tribunal. KSRTC had also challenged the tribunal’s order granting compensation to her. KSRTC argued that Pampa Pal was not employed at the time of the accident and, being highly educated, could not be treated as a homemaker. The corporation contended that since she was working as a homemaker on the date of the accident, she could not claim compensation under the head of future loss of income. Justice Dr.

Chilakuri Sumalatha, while rejecting this contention, observed that the concept of a homemaker should not be narrowly understood. Being a homemaker does not mean that a person must be uneducated, remain at home throughout the day or engage exclusively in household work. The court observed that the term “homemaker” is not confined to women and that anyone who sacrifices personal interests and contributes significantly to the comfort, welfare and well-being of the family can be considered a homemaker. The principle, the court noted, applies equally to men and working professionals. Pampa Pal was travelling from Bengaluru to Madikeri in a KSRTC Rajahamsa bus on October 19, 2013, when the bus collided with a lorry.

She sustained serious injuries and suffered permanent physical disability. She claimed to have spent up to Rs 10 lakh on medical treatment. The tribunal had awarded her Rs 4,55,243, including medical expenses. Challenging the amount, Pampa Pal told the High Court that she held a post-graduate degree in biotechnology and had worked as a guest lecturer before the accident. She had also undertaken private tutoring and earned around Rs 35,000 per month. She submitted that although she was working as a homemaker at the time of the accident, her educational qualifications, previous employment and income-earning capacity should also be considered while determining compensation. Taking these factors into account, the High Court enhanced the compensation by Rs 1,96,800, providing a broader interpretation of the economic value of household and family-related work.

Revanth may spring surprise on Congress rebels

HYDERABAD

WITH a considerable number of Congress MLAs revolting against Environment, Forest and Endowments Minister Konda Surekha, Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy is likely to take some crucial decisions soon after his return from London on Sunday.

To prove his political might in the party, the Chief Minister would pursue an action plan in consultation with the high command. "Expulsion of Surekha from the cabinet and the party and reshuffle of the cabinet is not ruled out," party leaders said that Revanth Reddy wanted to send a strong message to all dissents in the party by taking some stringent action against those who were damaging the government reputations openly.

Komatireddy Rajagopal Reddy and State Planning Board Vice Chairman G Chinna Reddy already raised a banner of revolt in the party on political issues and created friction in the ruling party. The party high command also took serious note of the increasing open defiance against the government by some leaders in recent times.

Leaders said that the CM will hold a meeting with TPCC President, State Congress in-charge Meenakshi Natarajan and some senior AICC leaders and take disciplinary action against the minister and also the two senior leaders.

"The party will take a serious note of the minister Konda Surekha family's political motives in the comments made against the CM. Action is imminent but in what form will be decided by only the party high command," leaders said.

TPCC DISCIPLINARY ACTION COMMITTEE LIKELY TO SERVE FRESH NOTICE ON KONDA SUREKHA?

HYDERABAD: THE pressure appears to be mounting on Minister Konda Surekha, with the Congress party reportedly preparing to initiate further action against her and considering issuing a fresh notice.

Congress leaders from Warangal district reportedly passed a resolution on Thursday calling for action against Surekha. On Friday, around 17 MLAs and 2 MLCs from Congress reportedly wrote to Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy, the Telangana Pradesh Congress Committee (TPCC) and the party high command, demanding her removal from the Cabinet. Against this backdrop, the TPCC Disciplinary Action Committee is reportedly considering issuing another notice to Konda Surekha. The TPCC Disciplinary Committee had earlier served a notice on Surekha seeking her explanation within three days over remarks made by her daughter, Konda Susmitha. Susmitha's comments concerning Chief Minister Revanth Reddy and MLA Revuri Prakash Reddy have triggered a fresh controversy within the Congress.

The latest developments have intensified the debate within the party over Surekha's position and the disciplinary action that may be taken against her. Meanwhile, Konda Surekha has said that she would speak about all the developments soon. Konda Susmitha, meanwhile, clarified that she had no grievance against the Congress party as such, but had specifically targeted Chief Minister Revanth Reddy. She also questioned Revanth Reddy's authority to announce the allocation of party tickets.

IS the Endowment Ministry proving unlucky even for Konda Surekha? It seems so. There is a belief that leaders, who serve as Endowment Ministers tend to face political problems and setbacks in their careers.

This belief has persisted in both the erstwhile Andhra Pradesh and the present-day Andhra Pradesh. Leaders such as late Dandu Shivaramaraju, Simhadri Satyanarayana, Gade Venkat Reddy, C Ramachandrababu, KE Krishna Murthy, Pydikondala Manikyalu Rao, Vellampalli Srinivas, Kottu Sathyanarayana, Ganta Srinvasa Rao, JT Rama Rao, J Ratnakar Rao, M Satyanarayana Rao, KV Ramana Reddy, S Gangadhar and Mahipal Reddy have served as Endowments Ministers, while Anam Ramanarayana Reddy is currently serving as the Endowments Minister. However, according to political observers, the political careers of many of these leaders did not progress as expected. Similarly, in the separate state of Telangana, a similar belief seems to exist. Allola Indrakaran Reddy, who served as Endowment Minister during the BRS regime, lost the 2023 Assembly elections from the Nirmal constituency. Ahead of the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, Indrakaran Reddy resigned from the BRS and joined the Congress on May 1 in the presence of Deepa Dasmunshi, the Congress party's Telangana affairs in-charge at the time.

Against this backdrop, questions are being raised over whether the Endowment portfolio is proving equally challenging for the present Minister, Konda Surekha. Since assuming office, Surekha has frequently found herself at the centre of controversies. Now, she is reportedly on the verge of being dismissed from the Cabinet.

A Congress party leader, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Konda Surekha had been facing repeated controversies and criticism from some party MLAs and Ministers. The leader alleged that Ministers and MLAs had frequently interfered in matters relating to her ministry, besides those arising from her own outbursts.

The leader also referred to the recent controversy surrounding remarks made by Konda Surekha's daughter, Susmitha, against Chief ENDOWMENTS Minister Konda Surekha and her daughter Susmitha Patel on Friday indicated that they would speak on the ongoing issue soon, but declined to make further comments for now. Speaking informally at her residence, Surekha said she had already addressed the matter on Thursday and would elaborate at an appropriate time. "I spoke about everything yesterday (Thursday). I said everything that needed to be said. There is nothing more for me to say," she said, adding that she was busy with a puja at home. Meanwhile, Susmitha said, "I will speak about everything after CM Revanth Reddy arrives. I will not say anything else until then."

Minister A Revanth Reddy.

The leader said that 17 MLAs and two MLCs held a media conference at the Congress Legislature Party (CLP) office and found fault with Konda Surekha and her daughter over the remarks made against the Chief Minister, following Surekha's reply to a notice issued by the TPCC Disciplinary Action Committee seeking her explanation.

However, the Congress leader questioned why the MLAs and MLCs, who criticised Konda Surekha and her daughter for openly criticising the Chief Minister instead of raising their concerns through party forums, had themselves chosen to raise the issue publicly through a press conference rather than taking it up with the party leadership internally.

He said everything seemed to be turning negative for Surekha and that her political future was now in the hands of the party high command. It was not yet clear what the high command was considering regarding the Konda Surekha issue, he added.

The latest developments have once again brought the Endowment portfolio and its political implications into focus, with the controversy surrounding Konda Surekha adding to the ongoing debate within the Telangana Congress.

FOUR HELD FOR SELLING MEPHENTERMINE INJECTIONS

HYDERABAD: THE sleuths of the Commissioner's Task Force, Golconda, along with Goshamahahal police, apprehended four persons for allegedly procuring and selling Mephentermine Sulphate injections, which are used by some individuals for bodybuilding. According to police, the arrested persons were identified as Gowtham Singh, the main supplier; R Abhilash, a supplier; and consumers Siddesh Aundekar and Daksh Upadhyay. Police said Gowtham and Abhilash were gym friends. Abhilash initially used the injections for muscle growth, following which Gowtham also started using them. Due to financial difficulties, Gowtham allegedly planned to sell the steroid injections for profit.

He reportedly contacted an unidentified supplier in Meerut, Uttar Pradesh, through WhatsApp and procured the injections through courier at Rs 160 per vial. The accused allegedly sold them to customers in Goshamahahal for Rs 900 per vial, making huge illegal profits. Acting on a tip-off, police caught the accused near Hyderabad Plastic Company Godown in Begum Bazar while they were allegedly carrying the injections for sale. Stop politicising Revanth's foreign trip: TG BJP chief TELANGANA State BJP unit chief N Ramachander Rao asked the Congress to stop making unnecessary politics over Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy's foreign trip.

Talking to the media on Friday, Rao reminded them that the Union Government had already granted permission to the delegation of officials accompanying the Chief Minister to hold meetings on investments and agreements.

He explained that when Chief Ministers or Ministers go on foreign trips, the Ministry of External Affairs makes decisions only after thoroughly examining key factors such as the official necessity of the visit, the background of the inviting organisations, the designation level of attendees, international protocol, diplomatic considerations, security arrangements, and FCRA regulations.

In this context, Rao cited past instances during the UPA government in 2012 when the Centre rejected the foreign trips of then Asam Congress Chief Minister Tarun Gogoi (to the US and Israel) and then Jharkhand BJP Chief Minister Arjun Munda (to Thailand). Furthermore, he recalled how Congress MPs and leaders conspiratorially wrote letters to deny Narendra Modi, who was the Chief Minister of Gujarat at the time, a US visa.

He warned against politicising the issue, pointing out that the Centre created no hurdles when Revanth Reddy travelled abroad in the past. However, the Central government's current decision strictly complied with regulations and procedural norms. Earlier, the BJP chief welcomed prominent doctors, including renowned Dr Vijayender and Dr Pramod on joining the BJP.

Dr Vijayender, a renowned cancer specialist from Hyderabad, Social and Preventive Medicine postgraduate, and organiser of the Cancer Rehabilitation Centre, and Dr Pramod, Chairman of Meghana Hospital, LB Nagar, were welcomed into the party by presenting them with party scarves.

He noted that Dr Vijayender, who has built committees across 33 districts in the state through the Telangana Doctors Federation and rendered exceptional service, joining the BJP while mobilising the support of fellow doctors is a very positive development.

SEARCH operations for the seven Andhra Pradesh fishermen missing at sea continued on Friday, with the Indian Coast Guard deploying five ships, two Dornier aircraft and a helicopter to locate their boat.

Agriculture minister K Atchannaidu said the State government was maintaining constant coordination with the Coast Guard and Navy and would pursue every possible avenue to trace the fishermen and bring them back safely.

Atchannaidu said officials had spoken to Coast Guard Assistant Commanding Officer Ranjit Kumar to review the latest position. Coast Guard officials informed them that an extensive search was continuing at sea, though the missing boat had not yet been located.

Information about the vessel has been shared with Coast Guard authorities in Myanmar, Port Blair and coastal areas bordering Bangladesh, with instructions to remain alert for any sighting or information regarding the boat.

The minister said the search would continue without interruption. Coast Guard officials had also assured the State that the officer taking charge after August 24 would continue the operation until the fishermen were traced. He reassured the families that the government was closely monitoring the search and coordinating with all available agencies.

He appealed to the families to remain courageous and not lose hope, assuring them that the search would continue through every possible avenue until the missing boat and fishermen are located.

HANS NEWS SERVICE

GOVERNMENT chief whip and Vinukonda MLA G V Anjaneyulu strongly criticised 11 YSRCP MLAs for staying away from the Assembly sessions, alleging that they lacked the courage to face the House.

Questioning why elected representatives did not attend the Assembly to discuss public issues, Anjaneyulu said it was unfair for MLAs to draw salaries while neglecting their responsibilities towards the people. He alleged that the YSRCP MLAs had "run away" from the Assembly because they were afraid to face the government. Speaking to the media at party headquarters in Mangalagiri, he criticised them for failing to come to the Assembly, which he described as a temple of democracy, and speak on behalf of the people. He said the four-day Assembly session witnessed meaningful discussions and continued for 25 hours and 15 minutes. A total of 103 members participated in the proceedings. Had the 11 YSRCP MLAs attended, they too would have had an opportunity to raise public issues, he said. Anjaneyulu also took a dig at the YSRCP leadership over the DSC recruitment issue. He said Minister Nara Lokesh's presentation of facts in the Assembly had left YSRCP leaders embarrassed. He described it as ironic that a person who could not distinguish between the APPSC and DSC had served as Chief Minister for five years.

He alleged that YSRCP leaders were staying away to avoid answering questions over alleged irregularities in the APPSC during the previous government. He also accused them of creating disruptions in the Legislative Council. Anjaneyulu urged YSRCP MLAs to attend the House and participate in constructive debates on public issues, stressing that elected representatives have a responsibility to present their views before the Assembly.

BC empowerment possible only with TDP: Ravichandra

NELLORE: TDP senior leader, party district president and MLC Beeda Ravichandra asserted that the development and political empowerment of Backward Classes (BCs) is possible only under the TDP. Welcoming the state government's decision to provide 34 per cent reservation for BCs in rural areas and 33.3 per cent in urban areas, Ravichandra described it as a historic step. Addressing a press conference at the TDP office here on Friday, he said the decision was not merely about reservations but was aimed at ensuring social dignity and political empowerment for BC communities. Ravichandra said the TDP deserved credit for politically empowering BCs and challenged the YSRCP to a debate on its contribution to the community. He recalled that former Chief Minister and TDP founder N T Rama Rao had introduced reservations for BCs, describing it as a pioneering initiative in the country. He said Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu and Education Minister Nara Lokesh were continuing NTR's legacy.

He noted that BC leaders had headed the TDP's State unit during the past 12 years. Referring to the Deputy Chief Minister's post, he said Pawan Kalyan was given the position based on the collective decision of the alliance partners. He alleged that the five Deputy Chief Ministers appointed by the previous YSRCP government had little real power. Ravichandra accused the YSRCP of obstructing BC reservations and alleged that nearly 16,800 BC leaders lost positions during its rule. He also claimed that around 70,000 backlog posts remained unfilled. He thanked Chandrababu Naidu for initiating the latest reservation measures.

Tenant farmers seek ₹2 L unsecured crop loans

- Appeal for unsecured KCC loans up to Rs 2 lakh for RMGs/JLGs with good repayment records
- RBI norms ignored despite permission for collateral-free loans; many farmers still stuck below Rs 1 lakh

AMARAVATI

THE Andhra Pradesh Tenant Farmers' Association has demanded that tenant farmers, Rythu Mitra Groups (RMGs) and Joint Liability Groups (JLGs) with a good loan repayment record be provided unsecured crop loans of up to Rs 2 lakh through Kisan

Credit Cards. Association state committee secretary M Haribabu and Farmers' Association state president V Krishnaiah submitted a representation to agriculture department principal secretary B Rajasekhar, urging the government to intervene and ensure easier access to institutional credit for tenant farmers.

The association leaders said members of RMG and JLG groups were not receiving crop loans according to the prescribed scale of finance. They pointed out that despite Reserve Bank of India guidelines permitting unsecured agricultural loans up to Rs 2 lakh, the facility was allegedly not being implemented effectively in Andhra Pradesh.

According to the association, earlier guidelines allowed unsecured crop loans up to Rs 1 lakh.

Andhra Pradesh Tenant Farmers' Association leaders submit a memorandum to agriculture special chief secretary B Rajasekhar in Vijayawada on Friday

However, with the rising cost of cultivation, the scale of finance for various crops has increased. The association said the limit for agricultural loans without collateral requirements has also been enhanced from Rs 1.6 lakh to Rs 2 lakh.

The leaders argued that the benefits should be extended to all eligible tenant farmers. They expressed concern that even farmers and group members who regularly repay their bank loans were facing difficulties in obtaining crop loans exceeding Rs 1 lakh.

Haribabu and Krishnaiah urged the agriculture department to hold discussions with State-Level Bankers' Committee (SLBC) officials and ensure that eligible RMG and JLG members receive unsecured crop loans of up to Rs 2 lakh.

They further requested that farmers requiring higher credit limits should be provided crop loans of up to Rs 5 lakh, subject to the submission of necessary sureties or guarantees.

Responding to the representation, agriculture special chief secretary Rajasekhar reportedly assured the association leaders that he would take up the matter with SLBC and bank officials and make efforts to facilitate the sanction of crop loans to eligible tenant farmers and group members.

Build upon the success of Southern Zonal Council meeting

THE 31st meeting of the Southern Zonal Council in Mahabalipuram, under Union Home Minister Amit Shah, can be called successful to the extent that it has paved the way for further negotiations to thrash out interstate and federal issues. A major upshot was the assent of the two Telugu states to sort out the matters of the division. "Regarding issues concerning the division of assets and liabilities between Andhra Pradesh and Telangana, both states agreed to resolve these matters in consultation with the Ministry of Home Affairs," a Central government release said. By and large, regional water disputes, parliamentary delimitation, and more devolution of federal funds dominated the meeting, which was attended by Chief Ministers of Tamil Nadu C Joseph Vijay, N Chandrababu Naidu (Andhra Pradesh along with, Deputy CM Bhatti Vikramarka Mallu), Karnataka's D K Shivakumar and Kerala's V D Satheesan, Lieutenant Governors of Puducherry K Kailashnathan and Andaman & Nicobar Islands Admiral D K Joshi (Retd.), and Lakshadweep Administrator Praful Patel. There was near unanimity about delimitation and on retaining the current proportion of southern states in the Lok Sabha, albeit with shades of difference. While Shivakumar urged the council to accept the 1971 census as the basis for delimitation and continue with the Lok Sabha's existing strength of 543 seats for the next 25 years, Vijay insisted on an unambiguous legislative assurance from the Union government for their continuation of their percentage of representation in Parliament. Unsurprisingly, the two other Congress-ruled states Karnataka and Kerala, supported Shivakumar's stand. Sharing of river waters, however, was a divisive issue among southern states. Shivakumar elaborated upon the benefits of the Mekedatu dam on the Cauvery not just for his own state but also for farmers in Tamil Nadu and Puducherry. It may be recalled that last month Vijay had sought Prime Minister Narendra Modi's intervention to ensure that no statutory or administrative approval was granted to the Mekedatu project unless it was consistent with the Cauvery Water Disputes Tribunal's 2007 award and the Supreme Court's 2018 judgment. Satheesan also spoke about the said Mullaperiyar dam, which is resisted by Tamil Nadu. Vijay didn't appear adamant on the delimitation and river matters, but the Opposition in his state, led by DMK, is not slamming him for not protecting the interests of the state. This is a problem not just with Tamil Nadu but other states as well. When regionalism and sentimentalism blend, the concoction is often toxic. Even reasonable agreements are dubbed as 'sellout'. The Central government emphasised this very point. Shah said that protecting the interests of one's state is not wrong, but if this results in states being deprived of water for years while it simply flows into the sea, then no actual interest is being served. He also said that linking major rivers, from the Brahmaputra to the Kaveri and Godavari, could ensure that India faces no water shortage for the next 100 years. Besides, the proposed interlinking would create multiple waterways that can provide a cost-effective and fuel-saving transportation system. Such interstate and Centre-state interactions should increase in frequency. They will not just make our federal structure stronger and more resilient but also give a boost to economic development and national integration. Moreover, this will help keep toxic regionalism in check.

Janaki deserved Dada Saheb Phalke

THE oldest living Telugu actress Sowcar Janaki, who breathed her last in Chennai on Friday, was born as Sankaramanchi Janaki. After the success of Telugu film "Shavukaru" (1950), she starred in popular hits like "Rojulu Maarayi", "Kanya Sulkam", "Dr Chakravarthi" and "Alam Chellelu" to name a few. Corporal punishment has no place in society

THE tragic death of a six-year-old UKG student inside the classroom of a private school in Visakhapatnam after he was allegedly subjected to corporal punishment and harassment by the teacher deserves denunciation. It is a profound moral failure of our educational environment. Corporal punishment has no place in modern society. When the safety of a classroom is compromised, the trust of every parent is broken. The authorities must file a case against the culpable teacher and the complicit school management, ensuring that they are brought before the law swiftly.

Tragic death of UKG student

THE gruesome death of a six-year-old Upper Kindergarten student in a private school in Visakhapatnam sent shock waves across the state on Thursday. The boy was allegedly slapped and striped for not completing his homework. It has become a fad for private and corporate schools to give massive homework to even LKG and UKG kids. The victim belonged to a lower middle class family, and the father is a catering master. Many private schools engage the services of Anglo-Indian and Malayali teachers, who hardly have any professional training in child psychology. There is a compelling need to do away with burdening KG students with homework.

Tech must 'mentor' new investors

WITH reference to "Tech should empower retail investors to avoid risks", (THI, Aug 21), digital investing has brought many first-time participants into the market, including those with limited financial knowledge. Brokerage applications should provide plain-language explanations, regional-language support and easy access to human assistance for decisions. Fraud prevention also deserves attention, particularly when fake investment advice circulates through messaging platforms. Technology will empower retail investors when it makes good decisions easier, mistakes less costly and fraudulent practices harder to execute.

K Sakunthala, Coimbatore-641016

Investors need grievance mechanism

WITH reference to "Tech should empower retail investors to avoid risks", (THI, Aug 21). Investors need a grievance mechanism. Brokers should maintain transparent records of orders, system alerts and execution times so disputes can be examined independently. A time-bound compensation framework may be considered for proven technological failures. Investors remain responsible for decisions they knowingly make. As trading grows, accountability must keep pace, accordingly. Investor confidence will be stronger when every participant knows where the responsibility lies when something goes wrong.

Durga Arunkumar, The Nilgiris-643101

Come up with regulatory framework

THE editorial "Tech should empower retail investors to avoid risks" rightly highlights the growing reliance of retail investors on tech-driven trading platforms. Easy digital onboarding, demat accounts and mobile applications have widened market participation, but convenience should not come at the cost of informed decision-making. Losses from futures and options show the need for investor education and risk awareness. SEBI and brokerage firms should ensure that tools, artificial intelligence and automated trading do not encourage speculative behaviour or create information asymmetry. Technology must empower investors, not expose them to manipulation, which can be achieved with a regulatory framework.

Gen Z needs mentors, not political manipulators

FROM VOTE BANKS TO GEN Z: POLITICS WITHOUT PRINCIPLES

POLITICAL parties in India seem to believe that when you cannot convince the people, confuse them. That perhaps explains the contradictions in their positions on almost every issue. Whether it is Gen Z or Vande Mataram, their arguments often have neither head nor tail. To have a head or tail, however, you need a body—and that is precisely what appears to be missing from much of our political discourse.

Political parties seem to be in a hurry to chant the Gen Z mantra in the hope of attracting votes. It apparently does not matter to them whether Gen Z is moving in the right direction or heading down the wrong path. If we must hand over a country to Gen Z to rebuild, it means the generations before them have already destroyed it. The real responsibility should be to hand over a country ready to move forward, not one that needs to be rebuilt first.

It is shocking to see Gen Baby Boomers (61–80) and Gen X (45–61) constantly invoke Gen Z while forgetting that their real responsibility is to mentor, guide, and prepare the younger generation to take over the reins of the country. Instead, for the sake of a few votes, they support—or pretend to support—young people even when they violate the law. Worse, some of these older generations themselves violate the law and then shamelessly defend their actions.

For cheap publicity, some Gen X politicians and activists indulge in theatrics, claim to speak for Gen Z and even make objectionable remarks against the Army. They seem to believe that invoking "Gen Z" gives them a licence to justify anything and everything. What is more disturbing is the manner the opposition parties attempt to defend such behaviour by linking it to unrelated political issues.

Take the recent incident in Ladakh. A woman tourist, apparently from Gen X, objected to a road blockade by Army personnel at a check post, questioning the manner in which the security personnel were handling the situation. She was heard shouting, "We are Gen Z," and saying that such behaviour would not be tolerated. She also reminded the personnel that they were paid from taxpayers' money.

This is not the first time that irresponsible remarks have been made against the Army. Far more objectionable comments were reportedly made during the politically charged agitation against the NEET paper-leak issue at Jantar Mantar on July 20. Those making such statements need to remember one basic fact: they can protest freely because the Army and other security forces protect the country's borders.

The Ladakh woman later apologised, apparently fearing legal consequences, saying frustration had driven her to behave that way. But an apology after crossing the line does not erase the act. It raises a larger question about character-building, parenting, and respect for the law. Increasingly, there appears to be a belief among sections of the younger generation that wealth, influence, or the language of "freedom" can place them above accountability.

Political parties appear increasingly willing to chase Gen Z votes rather than guide the generation that will inherit India. From defending irresponsible behaviour to politicising Vande Mataram, contradictions abound. The larger question is whether young Indians are being taught to respect the law, democratic institutions and national values—or to follow political convenience.

Political parties, driven by electoral calculations, refuse to call a spade a spade. Instead, they try to defend the indefensible when the offender happens to belong to a constituency they hope to attract.

The same contradiction is visible in the opposition's stand on Vande Mataram. The Congress Working Committee's 1937 decision to restrict the song did not resolve the political issue then, yet some leaders continue to invoke that position today despite Parliament having taken a fresh position on the matter.

Having a difference of opinion with a law is perfectly legitimate. But declaring that one will not follow a law passed by Parliament raises a far more serious question. If lawmakers themselves refuse to follow the law, what message are they sending to Gen

Z? Do laws need to be obeyed only when one agrees with them? Does Parliament have value only when it does what a particular political party wants?

It was particularly unfortunate to hear Rahul Gandhi speak of singing "hamara version" of Vande Mataram. Once Parliament has prescribed a particular form, there cannot be competing political versions of the national song simply to suit political convenience. The issue has also been unnecessarily communalised. I have interacted with several Muslims in both the Telugu states and Gujarat in recent times, and none expressed objection to singing the full version of Vande Mataram. The Congress and its allies, which have raised such a hue and cry, should explain whether their objection is genuinely about religious sentiment or about electoral calculations.

The Congress's position

also raises questions about consistency. Karnataka's state song contains references to figures including Lord Rama, Lord Krishna, Sage Kapila, Sage Patanjali, Sri Ramanuja, Guru Nanak, Swami Vivekananda and Gautama Buddha. Will the Congress, in keeping with its 1937 position, demand changes to that song? The River Krishna is mentioned in the state songs of both Andhra Pradesh and Telangana. Will those references also be removed?

It is time to stop selectively invoking the 1937 resolution. Congress leaders often point out that Mahatma Gandhi, Sardar Patel, Rabindranath Tagore, Subhas Chandra Bose, and Jawaharlal Nehru accepted the decision to omit certain stanzas. But history is more complicated than that. Bose, for instance, was not initially in favour of the truncated version and accepted the decision under pressure. Several other prominent leaders like C Rajagopalachari, H V Kamath (1912–1982), a distinguished freedom fighter, journalist, parliamentarian and constitutionalist, and Ramananda Chatterjee expressed reservations.

Why, then, should one 1937 decision be treated as sacrosanct nearly nine decades later? During the freedom struggle, Vande Mataram was sung in its original form despite objections from the Muslim League. The Congress's later decision was essentially a political compromise of its time. Circumstances have changed. India has changed. Parliament has changed. Why should political parties remain trapped in a 90-year-old political calculation?

If opposition parties genuinely believe that a law passed by Parliament is unconstitutional or wrong, they have every right to challenge it before the Supreme Court. That is the democratic way. Acting as though they are above Parliament or the Constitution is not.

The larger irony is that parties that constantly claim to be defenders of the Constitution sometimes hesitate to support provisions or reforms that are also rooted in the constitutional framework. If constitutional principles are to be respected, they cannot be selectively invoked only when politically convenient.

Political parties must understand that before being members of a community, a political constituency, or a generation, every citizen is an Indian. If someone does not wish to sing Vande Mataram, that is a personal choice. But there should be no attempt to prevent others from singing the full version, nor should its rendering be disrupted, as was reportedly seen at the AICC office in New Delhi.

And this brings us back to Gen Z—the generation that supposedly wants reforms in everything.

Here is the question they should ask themselves: Do we want to inherit a politics that teaches us to respect the law, debate it, and change it democratically? Or do we want a politics that teaches us to reject every rule that we dislike?

Do we want to be progressive or regressive?

The answer will determine not merely how Gen Z votes, but what kind of India it eventually inherits—and what kind of India it chooses to build.

Beginning of the end for archaic political psychosis

SATYAPAL MENON

PREDICTABLE are the ways that a dispensation under siege reacts to a backlash over its incapacities, improprieties, incapacities and insouciance. The Indian government - read as ruling political establishment at the Centre - has expectedly unleashed its proxy propaganda and vindictive blitzkrieg to transform the narrative related to Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) initiated upsurge against NEET scandal. Not unexpectedly, the fabrication division of the establishment is working overtime to manufacture disinformation against the non-violent and innovative agitation by the proactive youth of the country.

After succumbing to the demand of the youth and beating a hasty and clumsy retreat - consequent to the failure of suppressing the agitation through coercion and intimidation- the ruling political establishment- the National Democratic Alliance, specifically the BJP - is now in a retaliation mode. The latest reports indicate investigations into the antecedents of youth leaders and their linkages to political parties. Inevitably, the target and objective of the propaganda machinery of the establishment, and its machinations, is to create a narrative against political parties that are inimical to its own agendas. News reports reflect that the besieged government is desperately attempting to portray the agitating youth as desperadoes sponsored and funded by political parties. To obfuscate the truth, stories are being planted to create the impression that the agitation was pre-planned and contrived and not a spontaneous response of anger and frustration.

Such interpretations and claims are convenient for the government, since the touted reason that it is politically sponsored - is more convenient than the latter cause and effect - that it is spontaneous and simultaneous outburst by the youth of the country. It is not difficult to fathom the psychology of archaic mindset and dogmatic politicians holding the country's reins. It is not in tune with the needs, aspirations and ambitions of the youth in the country. It also reveals an irrational mindset, which views youth as malcontents and attempts to decimate dissent and discontent. While the ruling party is on a denial mode - see no truth, hear no truth, avoid inconvenient truth -- underestimating and undermining the undercurrents could prove to be counterproductive.

Threats by the government to investigate 'money trails', and imputation of political funding, will eventually prove to be ridiculous and superfluous, since there is nothing illegal in providing monetary support to an apolitical outfit for its' fight against the NEET deception. In the aftermath of the agitation that shook and activated the conscience of the nation - specifically the youth - there were also reports pointing to devious means to muzzle and muffle the heightening clamour through pressure tactics. Despite successive defeats and depletion of its arsenal to subdue and stifle the agitation, the truth seems to be too bitter and unpalatable for the ruling party. According to reports, those who had displayed banners displaying critical and satirical slogans against the government are being targetted and singled out for special treatment. Such vindictive actions are reflective of an incorrigible psychosis, impenetrable to reform. The perpetrators are perhaps nursing delusions that the uprising by the youth can be uprooted and ended through coercive tactics.

On the contrary, this could be the beginning of the end for oppressive and suppressive regimes. And, consequently, such an end will usher in the beginning and dawn of a new and reinvigorated era for the young generation and steered by the young generation.

Why your scalp suffers more than your hair during monsoon care it received earlier.

Monsoon humidity can leave hair dull, rough and difficult to manage, but the seasonal changes often affect the scalp first. Understanding how moisture, sweat and limited airflow influence scalp health can help make hair care more effective during the rainy months.

Why the Scalp Bears the Brunt of the Season

Humidity during the monsoon is rarely consistent. The air may remain damp and heavy on some days before becoming comparatively dry after rainfall. These fluctuations can affect the scalp's natural balance over time. Hair may appear flat by the afternoon or feel rough even after washing, while the underlying issue may actually begin at the roots.

Warmth and moisture can also contribute to flaking and itchiness. Wet hair takes longer to dry during humid weather, whether it becomes soaked in the rain, damp after a shower or moist from sweat.

Tying hair up frequently to keep it away from the face and neck can further reduce airflow around the scalp.

These effects may not always be immediately visible. Because hair that has already grown cannot repair itself in the same way living skin can, the condition of the scalp and hair over time often reflects the aloe vera is commonly used for its cooling and moisturising qualities. Ingredients such as amla, hibiscus and fenugreek have also traditionally featured in hair-care practices, particularly for maintaining scalp and hair condition.

Henna is another traditional ingredient associated with a cooling effect on the scalp. Some formulations combine it with botanical ingredients sourced from regions such as the Amazon, with the aim of supporting scalp comfort and balance during humid weather. Ingredient awareness is another consideration when choosing hair-care products. Some formulations avoid ammonia and related chemicals such as ethanolamine, diethanolamine and triethanolamine, ingredients commonly used in certain hair-colouring products. Consumers are also increasingly paying attention to formulations that follow defined clean-ingredient standards and exclude potentially undesirable substances.

However, natural or plant-based ingredients are not automatically suitable for everyone. Individual scalp conditions, allergies and sensitivities should be considered when introducing any new product, particularly if irritation or persistent flaking is already present.

Care That Restores, Not Just Corrects

Monsoon hair care does not necessarily have to centre on repairing visible damage. Paying attention to scalp hygiene, allowing wet hair to dry properly and Rainy weather can change the way hair behaves, making everyday routines such as washing, drying and styling more important. Excess moisture, sweat and frequent exposure to rain can influence scalp comfort, while prolonged dampness may affect hair texture and manageability. A seasonal routine that considers cleansing frequency, drying habits, hairstyles and product ingredients can help minimise these concerns. Traditional botanical ingredients such as neem, amla, hibiscus and fenugreek continue to feature in many hair-care practices, while growing ingredient awareness is encouraging consumers to examine formulations more closely. Understanding these seasonal factors can help make monsoon hair care more informed and consistent avoiding prolonged dampness can help maintain comfort during the season.

A consistent routine that suits an individual's scalp and hair type can be more useful than frequently changing products in response to temporary concerns. Gentle cleansing, adequate drying and careful ingredient selection can support scalp health while reducing some of the problems commonly associated with humid weather.

The monsoon may challenge the scalp in subtle ways, but understanding those changes can make seasonal hair care more deliberate. Rather than reacting only when hair becomes visibly dull or rough, maintaining scalp health throughout the rainy season can help support healthier-looking hair as the weather changes.

Bridging academic learning and career readiness through professional education

With B.Com continuing to attract thousands of students, commerce education is increasingly being viewed as a pathway to careers in finance, banking and business. As employers place greater emphasis on practical skills, communication and problem-solving, students are looking beyond classroom learning. Industry exposure, internships, mentorship and professional qualifications can help bridge the gap between academic knowledge and workplace expectations, particularly in emerging areas such as FinTech, financial analytics and wealth management

RAMESH VISHWANATHAN

One of the most popular academic programs for students who want to work in business and finance is the commerce program. According to Degree Online Services Telangana (DOST), 42,000 undergraduate students have confirmed admission to the B.Com programme. Due to its increasing popularity relative to traditional streams, commerce has consistently accounted for 37% to 40% of admissions. Nearly 44.08 lakh students are enrolled in undergraduate commerce programs nationwide, with male students accounting for 52.8% of enrolment and female students 47.2%, according to the All-India Survey on Higher Education (AISHE). These numbers show that young Indians are more interested in pursuing jobs in business, finance, and related fields.

These figures reflect the growing interest among young Indians in pursuing careers in business, finance and related sectors. However, in an increasingly competitive job market, a degree alone is no longer enough. Employers today are looking for graduates who can apply their academic knowledge to solve real-world problems and adapt to evolving industry requirements.

The degree-to-career gap
A degree remains an important starting point, but employment standards have changed over time. Today, recruiters are considering someone with more than just degree achievements: someone who can communicate effectively, solve problems, and apply their knowledge in real-world situations. This is particularly relevant for graduates in commerce. Careers in banking, wealth management, financial planning, FinTech, financial analytics, and corporate finance require specialised skills that go beyond classroom learning, even if their education gives them a strong foundation. This is where industry exposure becomes valuable. Internships, mentorship programmes and live projects help students understand workplace expectations, develop practical skills and make more informed career choices. These experiences enable graduates to transition more confidently from the classroom to the workplace.

Professional Education as a Bridge to Industry

The financial services sector provides a good example of how professional education enhances academic learning. As household finances become more complex, financial decisions today extend beyond savings and investments to include retirement planning, insurance, tax planning, children's education and long-term wealth creation. This has increased the need for professionals who can take a holistic view of an individual's financial situation and provide informed guidance.

This is where professional qualification becomes increasingly valuable. They help students apply what they learn in college while developing practical skills, ethical values and the ability to understand clients' financial needs. One such pathway is CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER® certification, which provides specialised education in financial planning and helps learners develop the practical skills needed in the profession. It can prepare graduates for roles in areas such as financial planning, wealth management and investment advisory, while also strengthening their ability to make ethical, client-focused financial decisions. Professional qualifications like these help students connect classroom learning with the practical demands of the workplace.

Preparing for a changing workplace

The transition from education to employment is becoming increasingly dynamic. Technology is reshaping financial services; new roles are emerging, and the skills required across professions are evolving.

This makes continuous learning increasingly important. Educational institutions can provide the academic foundation, while industry exposure and professional development can help students understand changing workplace expectations and adapt to them.

For commerce students, the breadth of their education offers the flexibility to explore different career paths. The focus now should be on helping them make informed choices and develop the capabilities needed to grow within those careers.

Ultimately, academic and professional education work hand in hand. While professional learning provides practical skills, ethical awareness and industry readiness, a university degree provides the theoretical foundation. Together, they prepare graduates not only to secure meaningful employment but also to adapt, grow and contribute confidently in an increasingly dynamic and competitive economy. As India continues to build a future-ready workforce, creating a strong bridge between classrooms and careers will be key to unlocking the full potential of India's youth.

Today is National Surgical Oncologist Day

THE CRITICAL ROLE OF SURGICAL ONCOLOGISTS

Surgical oncologists play a specialised role in cancer care, combining advanced surgical expertise with detailed knowledge of tumour biology and cancer treatment. Their work often involves complex procedures aimed at removing cancerous tissue while preserving as much healthy tissue and normal function as possible. These specialists are involved at several stages of a patient's treatment journey. They may help diagnose certain cancers, assess whether a tumour can be surgically removed, plan treatment with other specialists and perform procedures ranging from biopsies to major cancer surgeries. Their decisions often require careful consideration of the tumour's location, stage and relationship with surrounding organs and tissues.

Modern cancer care increasingly relies on multidisciplinary teams. Surgical oncologists work alongside medical and radiation oncologists, radiologists, pathologists, nurses and other healthcare professionals to determine appropriate treatment strategies. In many cases, surgery may be combined with chemotherapy, radiation therapy, targeted treatment or immunotherapy. The field also demands continuous learning as surgical techniques and cancer treatments evolve. Advances in minimally invasive and robotic-assisted procedures, imaging and surgical planning are changing how some complex operations are performed.

IIT Hyderabad centre to advance steel research and innovation

Jindal Steel and the Indian Institute of Technology Hyderabad (IITH) have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to establish a Centre of Excellence (CoE) focused on high-strength, value-added and value-engineered steel products and solutions at the IIT Hyderabad campus.

The Centre will focus on developing and demonstrating advanced steel applications for infrastructure, engineering, construction and strategic industrial sectors. The initiative will bring together IITH's technical and research capabilities with Jindal Steel's manufacturing, metallurgical and engineering expertise.

The Centre will explore applications of advanced steel grades in buildings and bridges, penstocks and large-diameter pipes, defence, heavy equipment, power plants, refineries, transportation, heavy engineering and other industrial sectors.

A key objective will be to support the wider adoption of high-strength and value-engineered steels by demonstrating their potential to reduce material consumption and structural weight, improve durability, enable faster project execution and enhance lifecycle economics.

The Centre will serve as a hub for application development, technical demonstrations, training, industry engagement and knowledge sharing. It will work with designers, consultants, engineers, fabricators, engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) companies, equipment manufacturers and project developers to identify suitable applications and support the technical evaluation of advanced steel solutions.

Prof. B S Murty, Director, IIT Hyderabad, said the Centre would strengthen the institute's role in promoting advanced steel solutions across India's engineering, infrastructure and industrial sectors. He added that the initiative would provide faculty and students opportunities to work with industry on real-world applications and explore how advanced steels can contribute to efficiency, performance and sustainability.

V R Sharma, Managing Director, Jindal Steel, said the partnership would help expand the use of high-strength and value-engineered steel across infrastructure and industrial applications. He highlighted the combination of IITH's technical capabilities and Jindal Steel's manufacturing and engineering expertise as a key element of the initiative. The collaboration will include application development programmes, workshops, symposia, industry-academia training and demonstration projects. It will also provide opportunities for student internships and placements, academic modules and other industry engagement initiatives.

The Centre is expected to engage with industry stakeholders and end users to facilitate technical assessment and support the adoption of advanced steel solutions across various sectors.

BWF World Championships

Treesa-Gayatri duo stuns world No. 4, to enter semis

India assured of first medal in women's doubles in 15 years

NEW DELHI

INDIA'S women's doubles duo of Treesa Jolly and Gayatri Gopichand have staged an upset at the BWF World Championships after handing a shock loss to the world no. 4 Chinese pair of Ji Yifan and Zhang Shuxian to enter the semifinals, confirming a medal for the country.

The Indians, coming from game down, registered a 16-21, 21-15, 21-13 win over the Chinese to become the second-ever pair to win a BWF World Championships medal in women's doubles. In 2011, Jwala Gutta and Ashwini Ponnappa won bronze, securing India's second-ever World Championships medal -- 28 years after the country's maiden medal in 1983 (Prakash Padukone's men's singles bronze).

The Indian duo looked vulnerable early on as Jia and Zhang raced to a 6-2 lead and kept their advantage through the opening game. Treesa and Gayatri gradually found their attacking rhythm, using their powerful smashes and sharper exchanges at the net to close the gap to 8-9.

The recovery, however, was not enough to prevent the Chinese to head into the breather with 11-8 advantage and eventually sealing the opening game 21-16.

The response in the second game was immediate. The Indians refused to allow their opponents the same control, matching them in

Satwik-Chirag pair loses in quarters

NEW DELHI: Star Indian men's doubles pair Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty's dream of winning a third medal at the BWF World Championships ended with a straight-game loss to China's world No. 3 Liang Wei Keng and Wang Chang in the quarterfinal here on Friday.

The world No. 5 Indians, who have won bronze medals at the 2022 and 2025 editions, lacked the required sharpness and crashed to an 18-21 9-21 loss in just 36 minutes against Wang and Liang, the Paris Olympics silver medalists.

The Indians had lost nine times and won four against the Chinese world No. 3 pair.

the longer rallies while defending under pressure as they earned a slender 11-10 advantage at the interval.

From there, Treesa and Gayatri grew increasingly assertive. The Indians opened a 17-14 lead before closing out the game 21-15 to force a decider.

In the decider, after an even start at 4-4, Treesa found the breakthrough with a powerful smash, and the Indians suddenly surged. Treesa's attack continued to cause damage for the Chinese, and the Indians entered the interval with a commanding 11-5 lead.

After the change of sides, Jia and Zhang briefly attempted to revive their challenge, but the Indian earned three straight points to restore their momentum.

At 18-9, the Indians were within touching distance. A review after Zhang's shot was called out did little to alter the outcome, and two further errors from Chinese handed Treesa and Gayatri the decisive points.

SC grants freedom to 105-yr-old murder convict

NEW DELHI

A 105-year old murder convict will now be able to live as a free man after the Supreme Court on Friday, closed the case against him and waived the remaining period of his life sentence, taking into account his advanced age.

Born in 1920 in West Bengal's Malda district, Rasik Chandra Mondal was convicted in 1994 in the murder case and was in jail till November 29, 2024, when the top court granted him bail.

On Friday, a bench comprising Chief Justice Surya Kant and justices Joymalaya Bagchi and V Mohana said that, having regard to the age of the petitioner, it was closing the case and waiving the remaining sentence, if any, in the matter.

Even if the life sentence is not over, he will not be taken back in custody, the CJI said and made the interim bail order of 2024 absolute and final.

"As an interim order, we direct that the petitioner, Rasik Chandra Mondal, will be released on interim bail/parole during the pendency of the present writ petition, on terms and conditions to be fixed by the trial court," the court had said earlier. Mondal had age-related health issues, it had noted.

In 2018, the Calcutta high court dismissed Mondal's appeal challenging his conviction in the murder case. Later, he moved the apex court, which also dismissed his plea.

In 2020, Mondal, then 99 years old, moved a plea seeking premature release, citing his advanced age and age-related ailments. In May 2021, the apex court had issued notice to the West Bengal government in the matter.

Musk pitches Starlink for rural India amidst stalled launch

NEW DELHI

EVEN as the Elon Musk owned Starlink tries to unlock a stalled launch in India, the satellite internet service provider has again made a pitch as a public-service solution with particular focus on rural India. "Starlink would help the least served in India, especially in rural areas," wrote Elon Musk, in a post on X, earlier today. Starlink awaits final regulatory clearance from the Indian government, which would allow it to flip the switch on commercial operations in India.

Musk has a point. The latest Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (TRAI) data points to a flat growth for mobile and broadband connections in rural regions. In June 2026, urban India added 4.36 million subscribers (0.55% growth), while rural India added just 0.62 million subscribers (0.11% growth).

Secondly, rural tele-density of 60.89% at the end of June, compares unfavourably to 153.43% in urban areas, indicating that roughly 40% of the rural population still lacks individual mobile or fixed-line connectivity.

A crorepati, but still a middle-class homebuyer

In Hyderabad, ₹1 crore is increasingly the price of a new home rather than a luxury purchase

SRIKANTH GODAVARTHI
HYDERABAD

A few years ago, being a crorepati was a big deal. It still is for many. But Hyderabad's real estate prices have changed the meaning of that milestone, at least when it comes to buying a home.

Today, Rs 1 crore is no longer necessarily a luxury-home budget. In many established parts of the city, it is increasingly the money a middle-class buyer may need for a decent new apartment. Even with Rs 1 crore in hand, buyers may still have to make choices on size, location and amenities.

For those with a lower budget, the Rs 50-75 lakh segment has not disappeared. But it has increasingly moved towards emerging and peripheral areas.

"In Hyderabad, a new 2-BHK in the affordable to mid segment would typically start at around Rs 70-75 lakh in emerging locations, while in established and well-connected micro-markets, prices are increasingly closer to Rs 80 lakh to Rs 1 crore and above," said N Jaideep Reddy, President, Credai Hyderabad. "The Rs 1 crore to Rs 1.5 crore range has become increasingly common, particularly in the western corridor, where land values and development costs are significantly higher."

Where Rs 50-75 lakh still works

Reddy said buyers can still find new homes in this range in Bachupally, Kompally, Kapra, Medchal, Pocharam, Ghatkesar, Vijayawada Road near Ramoji Film City, Shamshabad, Kothur, Patancheru and Mutangi, depending on the project and its stage of development. "In these markets, buyers can still find 2-BHK apartments, generally in the range of around 1,000-1,300 sq ft, although sizes vary considerably," he said. But the same budget buys less as the location gets closer to established employment centres. "In some projects, particularly closer to established employment corridors, the same budget may translate into a more compact 2-BHK or smaller configurations," Jaideep Reddy said. "The important point is that affordability at this price point increasingly depends on the buyer being flexible about location and distance from the established city centres."

Smaller homes, not cheaper homes

Rising costs are also changing the size and design of homes in the lower-ticket segment. "There has been a gradual shift towards more efficient and compact home configurations in the sub-Rs 75 lakh segment, largely reflecting the increase in land and construction costs,"

Jaideep Reddy said. "Developers are focusing on optimising layouts to provide functional homes within a particular price range rather than simply reducing specifications." There is no single figure for how much average home sizes have fallen over the past five years, he said, as the change varies across locations and projects. "However, the broader trend has been towards better space utilisation and more efficient layouts, with developers trying to balance apartment size, functionality and affordability."

A Rs 75-lakh home can become an Rs 85-lakh-plus purchase

The advertised price is only the starting point. Registration and government charges, parking where separately charged, maintenance or corpus deposits, amenity-related charges and interiors can push up the final bill. "The advertised price should not be treated as the final cost of ownership," Jaideep Reddy said. "For a property advertised at Rs 75 lakh, the final outlay can certainly cross Rs 80-85 lakh depending on the project, specifications, applicable taxes and the buyer's interior requirements." Once interiors are added, the actual amount can rise further, particularly for wardrobes, modular kitchens, lighting, electrical work and other basic fittings.

"Buyers should evaluate the total cost of acquisition rather than only the base apartment price," Reddy said.

Why Rs 1 crore is becoming common

The rise in land and construction costs is making low-ticket homes harder to deliver in established locations. "Land values have risen more sharply in established and high demand corridors such as Gachibowli, Financial District, Kokapet and Nanakramguda. Construction costs have also increased due to higher material, labour, logistics and other development related expenses," Reddy said. "There is no uniform proportion of land and construction costs that applies across Hyderabad. In established areas, land accounts for a larger component of the overall project cost, while in emerging locations, construction and development costs form a relatively larger share."

Reddy said the shift towards higher-ticket homes is not simply developers chasing bigger margins. "There has been a visible shift in new residential supply towards higher ticket-size homes. However, this is not simply because developers are pursuing higher margins," he said. The Rs 50-75 lakh segment is increasingly being served through emerging locations, smaller configurations and projects by regional and local developers.

The EMI is only part of affordability

For a middle-class family working in HITEC City, Gachibowli or the Financial District, staying within Rs 50-75 lakh may mean moving farther away. Reddy said buyers may explore Bachupally, Kollur, parts of Tellapur, Kompally, Ghatkesar and Shamshabad, depending on the project and connectivity. But the lower

“The Rs 1 crore to Rs 1.5 crore range has become increasingly common, particularly in the western corridor, where land values and development costs are significantly higher”
-N Jaideep Reddy, President, Credai Hyderabad

purchase price can come with a higher daily cost. "A lower ticket size may come with a longer daily commute and higher transportation costs," Reddy said. "The overall affordability of a home should consequently be assessed by considering the EMI alongside the time and recurring cost involved in travelling to work." There is also no single income threshold for a Rs 75-lakh home.

"Affordability depends on the down payment, loan amount, interest rate, tenure and the buyer's existing financial commitments," Jaideep Reddy said.

"While incomes have grown, particularly across Hyderabad's technology, services and professional sectors, the pace of growth has varied across households."

For first-time buyers, he said, "building adequate savings for the down payment and maintaining a manageable EMI" is increasingly important.

What does affordable really mean?

Reddy believes a cheaper home is not automatically an affordable home. "A Rs 60-lakh home may be affordable relative to a Rs 1.5-crore home, but that does not automatically mean it is affordable for every middle-class household," he said. "The true affordability of a home is determined by a combination of its purchase price, apartment size, financing cost, registration and other charges, maintenance and, importantly, the cost and time involved in commuting." "What has changed is the geography and definition of affordability," Jaideep Reddy said. "A buyer with a Rs 50-75 lakh budget still has options, but may need to compromise on location, size or amenities." He said the longer-term answer is to increase housing supply across price points, improve connectivity between residential and employment centres, make land and development more efficient and reduce avoidable costs.

"Affordable housing should ultimately mean affordable ownership without an unsustainable EMI or an unreasonable daily commute," Reddy said. For Hyderabad's middle class, that is the new housing reality: Rs 50-75 lakh can still buy a new home, but Rs 1 crore is increasingly becoming the price of buying one without too many compromises.

Centre rejects ethanol link to sugar price surge, blames millers

CENTRE SAYS AMPLE STOCKS ARE AVAILABLE AND WARNS AGAINST HOARDING, BLACK MARKETING AND UNJUSTIFIED EX-MILL PRICE HIKES

NEW DELHI

THE government on Friday rejected claims that diversion of sugar for ethanol production was driving a sharp rise in the price of the sweetener and instead blamed the industry for jacking up prices despite the country having sufficient stock to meet domestic demand.

The Centre said it has asked States to take action against hoarding and black marketing of the sweetener and also start preparing for early start of the crushing season by mills, by around October 15. It is also considering reducing the stock that dealers can currently hold.

Briefing the media on sugar availability and prices, Food Secretary Sanjeev Chopra said the government has taken precautionary measures by allowing imports of 10 lakh tonnes of sugar by October 31 and imposing stock-holding limits on dealers as well as bulk consumers such as soft-drink and ice-cream makers.

He asserted that there are ample sugar stocks in the country despite a fall in production to 306 lakh tonnes for the 2025-26 marketing year (October-September), down from earlier estimates of 343 lakh tonnes. Annual domestic sugar demand is around 280-285 lakh tonnes.

The production has been affected by Red Rot and Top Borer disease in sugarcane, as well as waterlogging caused by excess rainfall, Chopra said.

Following the government's recent measures, the secretary said retail prices are expected to fall in the coming days. The all-India average retail price has shot up to Rs 56 per kg from Rs 48 per kg on July 20.

Chopra pointed out that ex-mill sugar prices have shot up to Rs 62 per kg from Rs 47-48 per kg in just about 7-10 days, and said this kind of hike is completely unjustified. On Friday, the secretary called representatives of the industry bodies ISMA and the National Federation of Cooperative Sugar Factories (NFSCF) and told them that this sudden, sharp hike in ex-mill prices is "not acceptable". "It is incorrect to attribute the recent increase in sugar prices to diversion of sugar for ethanol production," Chopra said, adding that the diversification has improved the financial health of the sugar sector and also helped in timely payment to farmers. He said only 28 lakh tonnes of sugar have been diverted in the current 2025-26 marketing season. Only one-fourth of ethanol is now made from sugar and the rest from grains, mainly maize. "There has been this sharp increase in the prices of sugar in the recent past, and they have gone up from Rs 48 just about 15 days back to a level of Rs 56 now. It is important to clarify that this is not based on any fundamentals," Chopra said.

Tata Motors said it continues to absorb a significant portion of the increase in costs.

Govt rolls out ₹62,500-crore mobile manufacturing push

NEW DELHI: MOBILE phone companies, including electronics contract manufacturers, having a turnover of Rs 10,000 crore in FY26 will be eligible for benefits under the Mobile Phone Manufacturing Scheme, the government said on Friday.

According to the guidelines of the Rs 62,500-crore Mobile Phone Manufacturing Scheme (MPMS) issued on Friday, mobile phone companies, including electronic manufacturing services (EMS) firms with 51 per cent Indian ownership, having a turnover of Rs 1,000 crore in FY26 will also be eligible for participation in the scheme. The MPMS is aimed at providing support in the form of production-linked incentives for manufacturing mobile phones in India.

"Mobile Phone Manufacturing Scheme is open officially from today (Friday). It will be effective from April 1, 2026," Union Minister of Electronics and Information Technology Ashwini Vaishnaw said. Under the guidelines, any existing brand will be required to meet the minimum threshold sales of Rs 5,000 crore every year over and above the total sales of FY26 to be eligible for benefits under the scheme. This means, threshold sales over and above the FY26 turnover will be Rs 5,000 crore for the ongoing 2026-27 fiscal year, Rs 10,000 crore for FY28, Rs 15,000 crore for FY29, Rs 20,000 crore for FY30, and Rs 25,000 crore for FY31. Any new brand will become eligible for benefits under the scheme only after achieving total annual sales of Rs 10,000 crore in India. The incentive amount will be eligible sales in a financial year multiplied by the incentive rates - 2.75 per cent in FY27 and FY28, 2.5 per cent in FY29 and FY30, and 2.25 per cent in FY31.

Up to 10% Chinese stake rule unlocks ₹4,896-cr FDI pipeline

NEW DELHI

THE decision to allow overseas companies with up to 10 per cent Chinese shareholding to invest in India under the automatic route has begun to yield results, with 29 FDI proposals worth Rs 4,895.65 crore reported so far, an official said.

The investments span sectors including information technology, artificial intelligence, information and communication, manufacturing, pharmaceuticals, data centres and transport services.

The proposals have been reported by investors or entities based in jurisdictions including Mauritius, the US, Korea, Japan, Singapore, Luxembourg and the Cayman Islands.

The Finance Ministry notified the changes under

FEMA on May 1, significantly easing the process for companies with limited Chinese or Hong Kong shareholding.

Under the revised framework, foreign companies having Chinese or Hong Kong shareholding of up to 10 per cent can invest in sectors where FDI is permitted under the automatic route, subject to applicable sectoral conditions.

The government said the move removes the requirement of prior approval in such cases, allowing investors to proceed through the automatic route while complying with reporting requirements. The reform is expected to provide greater certainty to investors, reduce transaction time and improve ease of doing business, the official said.

DGFT relaxes One Star Export House eligibility norms

NEW DELHI: The government on Friday relaxed the 'One Star Export House' eligibility condition for exporters by revising the specific international trade and financial performance norms in three consecutive fiscal years. Earlier, exporters were required to achieve specific export performance in all three preceding financial years to receive the 'Star Export House' status. Under the revised norms, export firms reporting the same in any two of the three preceding fiscals will be eligible to get this recognition. This change, however, does not apply to the gems and jewellery sector as that sector already has a separate two-year requirement under foreign trade policy (FTP) 2023. The directorate general of foreign trade (DGFT) has amended a provision of the FTP "to allow granting of One Star Export House status to applicants (other than for the Gems and Jewellery sector) who possess export performance in any two out of the three preceding financial years subject to other provisions...".

'IRUMUDI' REVIEW: A powerful emotional film

SUHAS SISTU

AFTER a long interval, Mass Maharaja Ravi Teja is back with a film that prioritizes performances and emotional quotient over formulaic potboilers. Irumudi, a directorial venture from Shiva Nirvana, marks Ravi Teja's return to the big screen in style. Starring Priya Bhavani Shankar and Baby Nakshatra in prominent roles, the film combines a devotional angle with family drama and crime elements. More significantly, Irumudi delivers on its promise of being an entertaining showcase of the actor's prowess as a storyteller.

Story
Trinadh (Ravi Teja) is an Ayyappa Swamy devotee and owns a banana plantation in Polluru. He is deeply fond of his daughter Manemma. In fact, Manemma narrates every incident that occurs in her life to her father. But everything changes when she, along with other girls from the village, goes to a nearby village for her studies. The developments lead Trinadh down a fateful path that eventually takes him on a rollercoaster ride of crime and family drama.

Performances
The highlight of Irumudi is undoubtedly Ravi Teja's performance. As the Mass Maharaja sheds off his larger than life image, the actor displays shades of a multi-talented hero that we have been seeing in rare screens in recent times. Ravi Teja's emotional range deserves immense applause as he manages to leave an indelible mark on the audiences' minds. The star's pairing with Baby Nakshatra is yet another strong aspect of the film, as both display realistic father-daughter bonding onscreen. Baby's performance is indeed a standout as she manages to slip into the skin of her character and perform realistically throughout the film. In addition to Baby Nakshatra, Priya Bhavani Shankar, Sai Kumar, Ramesh Indira, and others have excelled in their respective roles.

RATING: 4/5

Technicalities

Shiva Nirvana must be praised for delivering a film that does not veer towards commercialism. In fact, the Ninnu Kori director manages to keep the narrative engaging without deviating from the core theme. The film's emotional and intense sequences are beautifully portrayed, aided by GV

Prakash Kumar's music and background score. Similarly, cinematographer Vishnu Sharma captures the beauty of the locales, especially the hills of Sileru, to perfection. The other technical departments, including production design and editing, are equally impressive.

Analysis

The film's first-half runs on a slightly slower note. Also, the second half lacks in certain areas, which is apparent in the meandering narrative. Additionally, certain developments in the crime and mystery departments seem cliched and predictable. However, such drawbacks are negligible in the larger scheme of things.

The father and daughter's equation is portrayed beautifully, as is the emotional quotient in the story. Irumudi is a feel-good film, which delivers what it promises to deliver. Ravi Teja is certainly back in the race with a stellar performance that has the potential to change the perception of him being only a mass entertainer.

Telugu cinema gets major boost with Telangana govt's new GO

THE Telangana Government's latest Government Order (GO) has been received well by many for its intent to promote and safeguard the film industry by creating a healthy ecosystem for the movie makers and workers.

The new policy aims to create a regulated environment for premium films with enhanced ticket prices.

These price hikes will not be automatic and will have to be approved on a case-to-case basis by the government for eligible blockbuster films.

As per the circular, multiplexes and single screen theaters will have to keep 25 percent of the total seats in all categories for cheaper fares in all locations.

Moreover, the policy will allow five shows daily for any big-ticket release, which would help first-time and smaller filmmakers utilize the free slots on the same day.

The circular also proposes an idea for a welfare fund for cine workers. According to Active Telugu Film Producers Guild (ATFPG), the GO will motivate people to invest in films and take the Telugu film industry to greater heights.
